Dear Friends,

As I have written a tribute to our dear friend and member of our Church family who died at the end of October, my article this issue consists of just a brief description on the celebrations of the season of Christmas and Epiphany.

Christmas, as you all know, is the time when we celebrate the birth into our world of a Saviour; born as a vulnerable human baby with the weight of all humanities expectations resting upon him.

It is a time of great celebration - the birth of new hope to redeem a broken and lost world; a light to shine in the darkness. However, although we now know the full story from the accounts we have in the Gospels, we will benefit more if we celebrate it, as though we are experiencing it for the first time and as if we were in real time. What I mean is, that although we can read the story in a matter of minutes we must live through the events as though they were actually happening. For example, the angels who appeared to announce the birth, the shepherds who went to see the baby along with the Kings, didn't all happen at the same time, within a few minutes of one another, but over a period of hours, days, or even weeks before the Magi (Kings) arrived.

The other thing I would ask you to do is to think of Christmas and Epiphany as one continuous season i.e. Christmas does not finish on the Epiphany - 12th night - but continues right up to Candlemas (2nd February). Viewed in this way, we begin to see the meaning of Epiphany which means manifestation or the revelation of who Jesus really is.

It begins with Jesus being born in a stable, known to just Joseph and Mary as a little baby. He is then revealed to the shepherds, common working-class men, who probably don't really understand what they saw, as many to day doesn't understand even though they celebrate wildly in this season. He is then revealed to the Magi at the Epiphany, with who we see something of the impact, this little baby would have on the world. They bring gifts; Gold for a King, Frankincense - burnt in homage to a God and Myrrh - a symbol of his death and sacrifice for the sins of the world.

In the remainder of this season we have the baptism of Jesus (Jan 9) where he is revealed as human - one of us; the calling of the disciples (16 & 23 Jan) when he is revealed to his followers, and finally in the wedding at Cana; again a revelation to the servants who draw wine from the jars. In all, a gradual revelation to the world; a reminder to the all of us that we are called to pay a part in this Epiphany process of revealing Jesus to others.

Have a happy and holy Christmas

Paul and Sue

Marie Lewis

Marie was born in Boston, Lincolnshire in 1959 to Mell and Joan the eldest of three, sister Jane and brothers Geoff and Adrian, who sadly died in 2001. Being in the RAF Mell took his family on somewhat of a gypsy type lifestyle to bases in this country including in Boston, Cornwall and abroad to Aden and Germany. They moved back to Wales in 1968 and began a more settled existence. In 1982 Marie married Bryan and in 1988 they moved to Ackworth with Becky being born in 1989 and Bryony in 1994.

Having studied at Llandaff University she began work as a bacteriologist, later working in virology for many years with the Blood service until she took early retirement in October last year. She also worked for a while in telephone banking where, although she didn't like selling loans, she loved to chat to people in the wee small hours, often listening to their problems and offered a service beyond the call of duty in the counsel and comfort she offered. She also worked for a short time on reception at Church House where, as in any circle she moved, she quickly became popular and well-loved.

Though always a Christian, Marie began to become increasingly more involved with the church here in Ackworth shortly after Becky's birth and went from strength to strength. She was a vital member of our ministry team and often the leading light, particularly in terms of innovative worship and services of outreach and involvement of young people. Few will ever forget the Gift services and crib services she organised around Christmastime. These and other liturgies were developed through Marie's great love for poetry; her worship bearing the stamp of her own creative abilities in this art.

Equally an expression of Marie's Christian faith was the pastoral support she gave us. Always available with an open and non-judgmental attitude, she valued and loved everyone regardless of who they were and what they had to say. There have been times when I have felt shamed by her openness and generosity. Marie gave freely of her time, her support and of her sacrificial love. She gave without asking anything in return - a lesson in humility we can all learn from. Though she had a particular gift with young people; but people of all ages have benefitted from Marie's kindness and love.

Many people will miss Marie for who she was and what she meant to each one of us. She touched the hearts and lives of such a great number of people and we will miss her comforting voice and that reassuring hug - always feeling better for having spent time with her. I will miss her terribly for what she did for me, this church and for other Christian groups and individuals in this community. But, though we will all miss her physical presence in our lives her spirit will always be with us in the love we shared, the friendship she gave freely and the Christian faith she shared and nurtured within us. Though we feel deep sorrow for what we have lost, let us not forget all that we gained and give thanks for the great legacy of faith, hope and love that she left with us.

Impossible though it is to sum up Marie's life in just a few words, I think St Paul's words from the reading of 1 Corinthians 13 that Marie chose, sums up a great deal of what she was to so many and the philosophy by which she lived her life here amongst us. . .

"There are three things that last forever, faith, hope and love -but the greatest of them all is love"

It is in this love that Marie now rests, freed from the pain and anxiety of recent months - a love founded in God and which shone through Marie's life. It is this love which will hold us together as a Church family now - a love which reaches out to support and strengthen those who will feel this loss most keenly - especially Bryan, Becky, Bryony, Jane and Geoff and their partners.

Death shall not have the last word - love conquers all - and, as we will sing in the final hymn chosen by Marie, "THINE be the glory!"

Ackworth Calendar 2011 is now on sale

This year the Fund Raising Committee has again created a unique Ackworth Calendar for 2011 that will be valued and sought after by residents and visitors and which will make a splendid Christmas present for friends and relatives who have moved away from the village, carrying fond memories of Ackworth to them at Christmas.

The 2011 Ackworth Calendar has been created using pictures and scenes of bygone Ackworth including the Post office on Bell Lane, Carr Bridge as it existed in 1910 and Ackworth School Mill Pond. These together with other old scenes and records of events again make this calendar a collector's item.

The calendars, sold in aid of the Church's Repairs, Restoration, Re-ordering Appeal, are now on general sale. Previews have been very well received. Make sure you get your copy (and a quality envelope for posting, if needed).

Do not miss out !

The calendars,
are available for £6.99 each
(with quality envelopes at 40p each) at
All Saints Church's (Thursday Coffee morning)

MARIE LEWIS

Marie had the skill of making you think that you were the most important person in the world to her at the moment she was with to you. Compassion and love flowed from her in abundance, and all of us here today will have had that experience.

Marie once spoke to us and asked us to imagine and bring to mind all those people who had helped us on our journey of faith, and in life. She had tears in her eyes as she asked us to do this, as she remembered all those who had walked part of her path with her. How fitting perhaps that we have all shed many tears, as we remember the part Marie has played in our journeys, in faith and in life.

Bringing us closer to God. For some of us that meant opening the bible and bringing it to life. For some of us that meant being led as she held our hands and walked with us towards Christ. For some of us it was standing by and offering intercession. But for all of us she was a shiny person. Remember she talked about shiny people. People who were so full of God's Spirit that they shined as lights in the world, to the glory of God the Father. But she never reckoned herself as one of those shiny people.

But relationships were at the heart of her ministry in life, and her family most of all, whom she always strove to protect and support. But Marie's love and affection for people and relationships did not stop at the Lewis threshold, it spilled out into this church, into the Christian community here in Ackworth, and into the community at large, and the huge numbers of people who share the grief of Bryan, Becky and Briony, are a tribute to that fact. And it's that love that we remember. And the joy and the humour she brought into our lives. Only a few days before she died, she joked about her hair growing back after the chemotherapy. She told me that she had more hair than me. She asked if I thought she would get big or little angel wings. I told her to get the biggest she could find, but making sure they were smaller than St Pauls.

One thing Marie spoke of was people who stood gazing. The ones who stood gazing at the empty cross, the ones who stood gazing at the empty tomb, the ones who stood gazing at the clouds. These people, she said were stuck, they were not following through what Jesus had told them.

They were missing out on the resurrection experience, and life in all its fullness.

This was the heart of Marie's Gospel message.

She didn't preach Christ's death

She didn't preach Christ buried

She preached the risen ascended Saviour and Lord Jesus Christ.

She didn't preach death and decay

She Preached Easter Sunday and resurrection.

She didn't live in Good Friday, she lived in Easter Sunday.

All she believed and taught and preached was resurrection hope and eternal life.

That was what Marie gave to us while she was with us.

That is what Marie has left us now she is no longer with us.

That is what we must take with us into the future.

Because that is where Marie is now, living that eternal life in all its abundance and with much greater clarity than we can ever imagine.

Now she is welcomed into God's presence, with much cheering from all the saints, and I'm sure that even St Paul will greet her with a warm hug.

Now she stands in God's presence, fully restored and renewed.

Now she has entered God's heavenly kingdom, with all stubbornness removed.

Now she will realise that she has been one of the shiniest people that any of us have ever met.

And now she will be sitting with Jesus, at God's right hand.

But she will always be a shiny presence in all our lives.

Farewell Marie and God bless you.

Paul Fox

SUZY UPDATE

During the past twelve months the collections taken at All Saints' and St. Cuthbert's churches have totaled £769.65 .

Donations from friends during this time have been £677.19 .

A very big thank you to all who have given so generously.

Since the Ackworth branch of the Suzy fund started in 1996, the money collected has amounted to £15,467.78, plus the extra money from gift aided donations.

There are no administration costs.

During the past year amounts varying from £150 to £7,000 have been sent to various projects in Ethiopia, Africa, Romania, Darfur and Malawi.

NORFOLK CHURCHES TRUST-SPONSORED CYCLE RIDE

Last year we noted the above event which is held annually on the second Saturday in September, so we arranged to be in Norfolk so that I could take part. Twenty nine other counties arrange similar events. Half the proceeds of my ride will go to the Trust and the other half to our Restoration Fund.

The first step was to plan a route visiting as many churches/places of worship as I could manage, taking the terrain and my advanced age into consideration. There are 892 listed, Norfolk is reputed to have more churches than any other county in England. Using compasses, hardly used since school days, I drew a semi-circle, with a 10 mile diameter, centred on a point midway between Cromer and Sheringham. Within this arc I noted 25 churches which I might reasonably visit (though the sponsor form only allowed for 20), without too much back tracking, in the allotted time. Although Norfolk is generally considered to be flat the Holt/Cromer Ridge, which rises over 300 feet (95 m) to Roman Camp, the highest point in the county, lies between our caravan site and many of my chosen destinations.

In order to identify the locations of many churches I covered part of the route, with which I was unfamiliar, by car on August 16th. Even with maps to hand I managed to go 2 ½ miles astray; at least I would not be making that mistake on the day. My planned route would be at least 30 miles long, more than my usual weekly total mileage. Long range weather forecasts indicated wind and rain and the local forecast, the day before, said rain clearing in the afternoon. I considered a late start but then there was a risk that I would exceed the time limit. Day broke with an ominous red sky in the east but as cloud cover was not too leaden I went for a 9.00 start, and light rain began to fall at 8.40.

At my first church in East Runton, close by our caravan site, I was the first customer. I headed on south into a strong headwind with rain still falling, walking up the Ridge to save energy. At the second I met a lady who was being sponsored to clean the church whilst also acting as Recorder. At the third church I aggravated an old muscle injury alighting from my bike. Fortunately I only experienced pain walking up to each church doorway. A little further along was a redundant church where I was met by the treasurer of the Norfolk Churches Trust, who was there acting as Recorder.

Eight miles into my ride the rain stopped as I entered the park of a large estate; the partly ruined church there is still in use. The Recorder was not at his post but nearby watching a calf being born in the next field. He walked with a limp and confided in me that he had an Arthroscopy in his knee the day before and we shared mutual knee operations. I saw on my map that I could cut a mile or two off my journey if I continued straight through the Estate, past the Hall, where there was no public right of way. He said that the young owners were supportive of the cause and would not object, but their gamekeeper might not be so likeminded. I decided to run the gauntlet and did not cross his path.

Next I turned to the west gaining welcome relief from the strong wind. At the next church where I was only the second customer much interest was generated by my supporting a church from outside the county of Norfolk. One lady asked me whether Pontefract was in Wales.

As I reached the limit of my longest ride this year (16 miles) I was confronted by a steep hill, up out of the River Glaven Valley. I had intended to walk up this one but to my great satisfaction I was able to take it in my stride. At the Methodist Chapel in Holt I was greeted by a trumpet fanfare; it was not for me though, for my visit had coincided with band practice. After visiting the chapel at Gresham Independent School I met up with a church youth group also taking part at High Kelling, at a tiny church which had previously been the chapel for a TB sanatorium. I followed them past three more churches before we went our separate ways. Back over the Ridge the sun came out as I approached Sheringham. At the Quaker Meeting House I benefitted from a morning function with coffee and a sausage roll. (Biscuits and cold drinks had been available at most churches). Now on the flat beside the sea I turned east pausing at Beeston Regis, where the church standing on high, with the sea behind, was reminiscent of a galleon in full sail. Next stop was at West Runton, where we had learned of this event last year and then I was back to my starting point. I had it in mind, if I were physically able to go on to Cromer where there were 5 more churches to add to my list. I felt surprisingly fresh after 31 miles and decided to go on.

At the parish church which boasts the highest tower in Norfolk I had to make my way through a gaggle of wedding guests posing for photographs. At the British Legion Care Home there was no sign of the yellow stickers I had become used to as an indication of the signing in point. Two less than helpful employees begrudgingly indicated that the chapel might be round the back of the building. Another steep hill and I had achieved my revised target of 28 churches before retracing my steps back to our caravan site with 35 miles covered, for a nice long shower.

During the day I visited 4 Methodist Chapels, 2 Roman Catholic Churches, 1 school chapel, 1 care home chapel and 19 Anglican Churches. One dedicated to St. John, St. Martin, St. Michael, the Holy Trinity, 2 to St. Andrew, & St Mary, 4 to St. Peter and 7 to All Saints.

I am most grateful to all those who have so generously supported me in this joint fund raising event. I have raised three hundred and twenty pounds. I hope to repeat it next year but taking a different route.

Colin Tanswell.

CHRISTMAS CARDS

It was Sir Henry Cole who in 1843 produced the first card. Having forgotten to write his regular Christmas letter to his relations, he asked a friend to design a Christmas message which could be mechanically reproduced. One thousand copies of the first card were initially printed. Sir Henry used what he needed and gave the rest to a friend for a shilling.

The first Christmas card thus had little religious or festive significance. Colour was introduced in 1863 and Adolph Tuck stimulated mass interest, launching a design competition in 1880, with a 500 guinea prize. Cards received Royal approval in 1893 when Queen Victoria ordered some from Adolph Tuck's father Raphael.

The world's biggest card was printed on the side of a Boeing 707 for Qantas, the Australian airline. It read, "Have a Quantastic Christmas."

The smallest was sent to the Prince of Wales in 1929-inscribed on a grain of rice and only read under a microscope. The most expensive card ever made was commissioned by an Indian Prince over 90 years ago. It was made from ivory, decorated with 1,000 scenes of the Buddha, and had 44 diamonds around the edge. It was valued at half a million pounds. Alfred Lord Tennyson once refused a fee of a thousand guineas to write verses for Christmas cards.

COFFEE MORNING RECIPE

FRUIT CAKE

For those of you who find the traditional Christmas cake too rich, this is a simple alternative recipe.

FATHER BILL BURTOFT

Father Burtoft died earlier this year on September 14th aged 84 years. Before coming to Ackworth in 1987 as Parish Priest of Our Lady of Lourdes he had been Headmaster of St Bede's Grammar School in Bradford. Everyone who attended Churches Together services will remember him as a very friendly and hospitable man. Who can forget after services get together when he sent out for pizzas and other takeaways? He retired in 2001 and returned to his birthplace, Rotherham to live with his sister. His friendly outgoing nature endeared him to many and he was sadly missed by the wider Christian group in Ackworth

Barbara Rorison (Lee)

Barbara Rorison died on Monday 8th of November 2010 at the home of her daughter, Alys in Wrexham at the age of 93. She was born in Ackworth and was a member of the well known Lee family and was the sister of George Lee.

AN EXTRACT FROM SAYWELL THE MARTYRDOM OF ST. ROBERT OF NOSTELL

"Robert Ferrar, D.D. Bishop of St. David's, was born at Ewood, near Midgeley, in 1505. He was the last prior of Nostell, and the first English monk who became tainted with Lutheran opinions. He was arrested on the most frivolous charges, fifty-six in number, and condemned by Gardiner, Bishop of Winchester, and Morgan, of St. David's, to be burnt alive on March 30th 1555.

On the day appointed, the Saturday before Passion Week, he was brought out of prison to the market place, near Carmarthen Castle, and there, on the south side of the market cross, he was bound to a stake, and heroically endured the martyrdom of the fire. Monuments are erected to his memory in Carmarthen and Halifax Parish Churches, and also at St. Florence's Church near Tenby."
