Charlene Smith – welcome to Ackworth!

Tuesday, 13th February 2018 marked an important day in our church history as the Reverend Charlene Smith was installed as Priest-in-Charge of the Parish of Ackworth. We welcomed Charlene during a packed service which included representatives from our churches, Diocesan clergy, local community members and leaders and from Charlene's previous parish in Meltham. Led by Bishop Tony Robinson and the Area Dean Reverend Canon Bob Cooper, our interregnum ended as Charlene was licensed to serve this parish. The vibrancy of the service spoke volumes; we very much look forward to working together with Charlene to explore the ministry of our church in this community.

Lynne Ward and Julie Davis

'My brothers and sisters, as we pray that Charlene may be a willing and faithful shepherd of God's people in this place, let us also pray for all who share in this ministry'

(Bishop Tony Robinson, Licensing Service, 13th February 2018)

The Thursday Club Returns!

Following the success of the Thursday Club in 2017, it will recommence in April and will take place on the second Thursday of each month until October.

The Thursday Club was established to provide a social event for the Parish and is an opportunity to meet old and new friends and enjoy an evening out. At each meeting of the Thursday Club, there is some form of entertainment such as an informal concert, a demonstration, or a talk. We aim to provide a varied programme so that hopefully there will be something to appeal to everyone. The entertainment usually lasts about 45 minutes and is followed with refreshments and a chance to chat.

Please make a note of the Thursday Club dates for the next few months. They will be:

Thursday 12th April

Music to relax to with Julie, Bob and friends at 7.30pm at All Saints' Church

Thursday 10th May

Ascension Day service. 7.00pm at All Saints' Church

Thursday 14th June

Wine Tasting at St Cuthbert's Church. Contact 01977 616183 for more details nearer the time.

Lifts are available to and from the Thursday Club. Please contact Biddy Branston on 01977 610590 if you need a lift.

Three Priests Walking

Three priests are walking towards the pub which they do at this time every year, the spring slowly gathering into summer, every tree attempting glory, this time of acceptance and setting some things in a corner, a waiting space, plenty of time for questions and the old disputes and what might never be said.

And in the pub the usual greetings and small reveries about time and what we do with days and remembering faces that are missing and the occasional flutter of forgetting, an old joke rising and then hidden, something about faith and what could have been, holding hands with the past and what might have been.

St Etheldreda

Michael Tavinor

In 673 Etheldreda, daughter of Anna, king of East Anglia, established a convent on an island among the Fens and served as its abbess until her death five years later. During her last illness, in 679, Etheldreda endured a tumour in her throat, which she interpreted as punishment for her youthful pleasure in wearing splendid necklaces.

About 685, Abbess Sexburga, the saint's sister, resolved to translate the bones of Etheldreda from their wooden St Etheldreda Indomitable saint of the Fens coffin in the community cemetery to a more suitable shrine. She sent some monks to the deserted Roman camp at Grantchester, where they found a beautifully carved white marble sarcophagus, with which they returned to Ely with much rejoicing. On 17 October 695 the abbess and nuns saw the miraculously incorrupt body transferred to a new tomb set inside the abbey church itself. In addition to the discovery of Etheldreda's body as incorrupt, contemporary witnesses suggest that the wound caused by the tumour had been miraculously healed. The site of the original grave remained marked by the appearance of a miraculous spring.

In 870 the devastating Danes invaded Ely. Supposing the marble chest to contain treasure, one of them with repeated blows cracked the stone cover and his eyes immediately emerged from their sockets. No one else dared to touch it and the body of the saint remained undisturbed.

With the building of the new choir by Abbot Richard (1100-07) it became necessary to remove the shrine, and in 1106, with great pomp the marble shrine was solemnly translated to a position behind the high altar. At the same time the bodies of St Etheldreda's sainted relatives were moved – St Sexburga, St Ermenilda, her niece, and St Withburga. At the service, Bishop Herbert of Norwich preached a sermon on the life and miracles of the saint. At that exact moment, a terrifying storm is said to have broken out. Archbishop Anselm, who had been unable to attend the ceremony, heard the thunder from Canterbury and uttered a dire warning that few of the participants who had viewed the body of St Withburga would survive the year.

The only evidence of the appearance of this shrine – still with its Roman sarcophagus – appears to be on a painted panel dating from the fourteenth or fifteenth century. The panel, found doing duty as a cupboard door in Ely, probably originally served as a retable or altar piece in the conventual church. The last of the four scenes of Etheldreda's life shows the placing of the body in the marble coffin, the sculptures on it being consistent with Roman design of the time of the occupation of Britain.

O'er each continent and island

Geoffrey Lawson

A while ago I heard a lovely programme on the radio. In short, the presenter recalled his grandmother telling him that Spring moves north at walking pace, and so he decided to test this out. He left Bournemouth as the first daffodils began to bloom and walked north in the hope that he would enjoy daffodils all the way to John O'Groats.

Depending upon how fast you walk, quite steadily in this case, his grandmother was more or less right! Spring moves north at the rate of 16 miles per day plus an extra day for each 100ft above sea level. What a delightful notion – enjoying daffodils all the way from Bournemouth to John O'Groats!

One of my favourite hymns is 'The day thou gavest Lord is ended'. There is not space here to quote the hymn, but it expresses the sentiment that, as the world turns, 'o'er each continent and island', there is always someone somewhere beginning the day with a hymn of praise; there is always someone somewhere saying their midday prayers; there is always someone somewhere saying Compline.

I find that a powerful image, particularly because for 21 years I worked for the mission agency USPG and so knew and could visualise acquaintances in many corners of the world.

As with the daffodils, there is a wave of prayer and praise which, in theory anyway, one could follow around the world.

So often today regular worship can be neglected. There is always something more urgent to do; busy lives mean that Sunday is the only day for a bit of family time or indeed the only day to catch up with household chores. Giving time for worship is difficult and I fully understand and appreciate that.

But worship is never-the-less important. It is the one thing we can offer to God that is of our very self. Sometimes at church we say 'All things come from you O God and of your own do we give you.' The blessings we have, even the gifts and talents we offer others, come from God. What we can offer God from deep within ourselves is worship.

Furthermore, scripture reminds of the duty of worship. 'Ascribe to the Lord the glory due his name... Come before him. Worship the Lord in holy splendour' (1 Chron 16.29). However, if you have not managed to say your prayers yet today, don't worry too much. Someone in the world will be saying them for you. And if you have not seen any daffodils yet, don't worry. Someone else will have done and you know they are coming, albeit at walking pace.

Welcome

It's been eleven years since I first started down the path towards ordination. A boomerang journey that has taken me and my family across the dioceses from Pontefract to Meltham stopping along the way at Mirfield to train and live living alongside a monastic community and then home to Ackworth. As I immerse myself in these first few weeks and months as your parish priest, words fail when I try to describe how overwhelming it is to have the honour and privilege of serving both you and our Lord in this special place, to be able to celebrate the Sacraments for the first time together with the wonderful people of this parish, especially our first Holy Week and Easter together. There are no words that could do justice to how humbling it is to stand with you, as one of your priests. Jesus himself is priest, and the whole Church is His priesthood.

In the words of Michael Ramsey, The ordained priest is called to reflect the priesthood of Christ, and to serve the priesthood of the people of God. To be a person of theology, person of reconciliation, person of prayer, person of the Eucharist, displaying, enabling, involving the life of the Church, such is the ordained priest. So when I knelt in front of the Bishop to renew my dedication to Christ as a priest of the new covenant, I answered him joyfully "With the help of God, I will". As I continue to immerse myself in parish life in the coming months, I will continue to commend myself as servant of Christ and of His Church.

Please pray for me, as I will be diligent in prayer for you, the Lord being my helper.

Charlene
